

Chicago foot expert coming to our store

HERE THURSDAY, JULY 21st

Foot Pains that tire you out can be relieved and corrected

Every foot pain that you have has a cause! And if you just know that cause you can find the scientific method of getting it relieved and corrected.

You can come to this store and find out the cause of your foot trouble! You can talk to a man who has been trained in the foot comfort methods of Dr. Wm. Scholl of Chicago. This foot expert—this Dr. Scholl Practitioner—understands your foot trouble, will explain to you its cause, and will show you, free of charge, the appliance that will correct it.

These appliances are not experiments. They have been tested and found successful all over the United States for a great many years. Do not neglect your feet. You now have the opportunity to have your feet examined and to find out just what they need for their immediate relief.

Don't forget the date. And don't fail to come in and find what your feet need to make them comfortable. Remember the demonstration is free.

"Policyholders Month"

The Canada Life Man

1. He points the way to success for the young man.

2. He stops the busy city man and persuades him to think of the real objects in life.

3. He urges the farmer to protect the home.

4. He pays a Widow's claim and finds the money is sorely needed.

Each year the Canada Life sets aside a Special Month for calling upon Policyholders where that is possible.

The present month may bring the Canada Life Man to you, but the large number to be seen may make this impossible in your case.

Our Mission

To keep the home together; to afford means to bring up the children and give them a chance in life; to clear off a mortgage or other obligation; to protect personal and business interests generally—that is the great need which is our mission to fill.

Our Representatives are trained for special service.

For Instance

You may not be fully informed as to what your life insurance will do for your home, or your personal and business interests.

Your Canada Life policies may require to be altered to suit new conditions.

You may wish to arrange to have your life insurance paid as a monthly income, or you may require new policies adjusted to your partnership or business interests.

Group insurance on your employees should perhaps be engaging your attention.

All these subjects are part of the special training with which the Canada Life Man is furnished for your benefit.

A Suggestion

Why not, without the slightest obligation, consult our nearest representative, or write to the Home Office of this old, tried Company, which has abundant evidence of success, is experienced in life insurance, pays large dividends to policyholders, and safely and sanely manages the business entrusted to it by the public?

Hearth, Glow And Homesun

(By Polly Peel.)

We were buying hats in a little hat shop one day, the Nicest Neighbor and I, when a man and woman came in and the woman pointed, rather hesitatingly, to a smart hat in the window and asked to try it on. She was a woman of sixty, or perhaps sixty-five, with a worn pale face, from whose temples the hair was drawn thickly back. She wore a buttoned coat, covered with feathers of the same shade, and all rather shabby and bedraggled. Her husband was shy and strange, too, in the bright little shop, and watched rather sheepishly while the saleswoman reached for the hat, quivering as she did so a price which made the would-be purchaser draw back and ask to see something else.

"Try that on if you like it, Maria," the husband urged, and after dithering for some time the wife yielded. The hat had a coquettish tassel hanging over one ear, and the girl, in business fashion, held back as her customer surveyed herself in the glass.

"This wouldn't be suitable for you, of course," she said. "We would take it off."

The face of the elderly woman fell. That tassel was the whole hat to her, but she wouldn't admit it. So she said, "It's too expensive, anyway; I'll try something else."

One after another she picked upon girlish, capricious little hats, while her husband watched with vague apprehension written all over his face.

"I did want to take a hat home with me from the city," she said, looking long for her own old, grey hat, but nothing, as she turned, the hat the Nicest Neighbor was wearing. Now, the Nicest Neighbor, in spite of her 12-year-old son, is a very youthful person indeed, and a smart little hat, tilted saucily to one side, was most becoming.

"There, I like that hat," the stranger said enthusiastically and with the light of a final discovery in her eyes.

"But you couldn't wear that hat, Madam! It wouldn't suit you," the girl said, with wonderful tact and consideration. One doesn't always find this in millinery shops. But the disappointed woman only sighed the more deeply, raised pathetic eyes to the Nicest Neighbor's face and said, "Oh, I would I was young!"

It was very sad and made one feel quite ugly, I must say, with the saleswoman, was inclined to think it a blessing if she refrained from saying any millinery of the sort upon which her affections were evidently fixed. So I was doubly astonished when the Nicest Neighbor, usually so very sweetly diffident and aloof, walked over the stranger's hat and pulled back from the temples.

"Be young," she said, in the most understanding tone. "Don't let them make you old. Fluff this hair out over your ears and you'll find it much easier to wear these hats. Now, let's try this one. You had better before, but with your hair like this, it's different, isn't it? I'd take it if I were you."

The saleswoman gasped, the husband gasped, I gasped; but the woman took the hat and went out of the shop supremely happy.

"Why shouldn't she dress to make herself happy?" I said to the saleswoman, who demanded, "Save my unspoken thought. She'd have gone away old and miserable; now she's young and happy."

For The Children

Story of Wiggins

Part Nine.

Everyone was glad to Wiggins in his new home. If it hadn't been for the thought of how and his old mother Betty was and how little Della must have been, too, our little dog friends would have been quite happy.

Now, it must be told right here that the man who had bought Wiggins was a very rich man and owned a lovely house with plenty of grounds for Wiggins to play in. What did it matter to him?

Parents having children who will reach the age of six years on or before the 1st day of October, and who wish them to commence school at the fall term, are requested to notify the undersigned, by the 15th July.

School will open on Monday, 25th August, and all children commencing in the Primary Class, must be present sometime during the first week.

E. FORSTER BROWN,
Secretary-Treasurer,
Macleod Public School.

NOTICE

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to noon of Monday, July 4th, for the purchase of a lot of building, situated on the west half of lot 23, near 24th street (opposite Town Hall) Macleod.

This is the burned building lately occupied by Messrs. Baker & Hartley, as a Butcher Shop.

Building must be removed within ten days of date of purchase.

E. FORSTER BROWN,
Secretary-Treasurer,
Town of Macleod.

TENDERS

Today I found the loveliest organically fringed while wandering through the shops, and they were so pretty and cheap I know they will be a great success all the younger set this Summer. The delectable colors were created in the smartest of styles, and all so simple yet with individual touches that made

Fry's Iced Cocoa

RECIPE: Keep on hand a vial made up of sugar, one cup of warm water. Stir until thick. Then add one cup of Fry's Cocoa, one cup of water, and one half teaspoonful of Vanilla Extract. To serve, allow two tablespoonfuls of this syrup to a glass with a little crushed ice and all with cold milk. Stir well.

Try this cooling, delightful FRY drink. You want it often.

them quite distinct. Cool morning frocks, suitable for pure white, afternoon dresses that would make one appear so attractive at afternoon festivities, and elaborate little affairs for dancing occasions.

One of the newest models that is distinctly this season's creation was of white organza combined effectively with black and white striped organza. There was a foundation frock of the white, with a rather narrow skirt, and a waist lining. Over this the striped material was hung, opening down the front, Tuxedo style, and faced with a bias strip of the white. The overskirt was quite full at the bottom and completely covered the underskirt, except at the front. White organza cuffs were used and a slim girdle of red failed silk ribbon was tied at the waistline.

This model was also interesting, made up in lettuce green and white and a Dutch blue stripe on white. There was a pretty little frock in yellow and white striped organza.

Oreid organza all frilled on the skirt from the hips to the hem, was another of the summer's new creations. The bodies were very plain with its tiny puffed sleeves and narrow skirts finished with a deep cape collar opened in the back. The cape collar was outlined with a narrow black velvet. A circle of black velvet ribbon defined the waistline, and a few French flowers in lovely pastel shades were pinned in the velvet streamers.

Flame-colored organza promises to be very well liked for dance wear, and these frocks are unusually simple, because the color itself is so attractive. The model ticks the skirt and finishes the bottom with a hem of black velvet. It sits like blouse rather than dress. It is a most charming skirt, with its sleeves in one, and is finished by a pleated skirt of the material, and there was a huge saffron of organza tied in a bow at the back.

A lovely frock comes in blue-pink organza, all dotted in white. The skirt is lengthened by a border of plain white organza, and a vest of white set into the bodice lends color. The short sleeves are also cuffed in white, and a gold, fashionable frock has this season.

Where there is smoke there must be fire, is no more true than the opposite, where there is fire, there must be smoke. Even strong light is produced by many natural objects without the accompaniment of either heat or smoke, and even burning where there is no flame. Yet there are many examples of light wholly lacking in these qualifications. To distinguish this light from the common varieties the words phosphorescence and luminescence have been adopted.

Of phosphorescence there are many types. One kind is due to the oxidation of fatty acids and animals such as glowworms, certain kinds of fish, lightning bugs, and birds; another sort is due to heating crystals, or, as to the phosphorescence of the X-rays, electricity, the sun, or even some waters.

Many minute sea animals and marine worms emit brilliant flashes of light because of their power of making at their pleasure a fatty substance which can be oxidized into a glowing phosphorescence. If one watches the breakers splash away from the prow of a river boat at night, the points and dashes of light, the serene caused by minute jellyfish and other thorned animals, called ctenophores.

The larger fish of the ocean are fitted with great luminous phosphorescent scabbard-like lenses. Like the tropical insects, beetles, fireflies and glowworms, then, fish, by sending a stream of nervous impulses to their "tiny lightning," oxidize these fatty tissues into well known phosphorescent flames.

Dr. Mart, who has studied the behavior of lightning bugs in western Maryland several years ago. At that time the insects were very abundant; dozens of them could be seen flying over every lawn and garden every evening.

Fireflies are found in dark caverns in underground during the day. In the evening when it is still that they come out. The females climb to the tips of the grass stalks or on other objects and remain quiet. The males fly about and glow at intervals of about five seconds. The females do not glow unless light from the males or from some other source is reflected on them.

In many species the illumination produced from the male differs from that produced by the female. In some the glow of the male is much more intense than that of the female. In others the male is much less intense than that of the female. In still others the illumination has certain peculiar distinguishing characteristics. The male glow consists of two flashes of light, one at the end of each interval, while in the female it consists of a single flash.

Fireflies are very nearly alike. There is but little difference in size and the wings of the female are as fully developed as those of the male. This is not generally the case in other species. The eyes of the male are much larger than those of the female and the luminous area is also larger.

Males do not orient, that is recognize their location when exposed to continuous luminous light. They respond only to flashes of light and the reaction does not begin until after the light has disappeared. Reaction of the female immediately after she glows has no effect on the male. The orientation may take place in total darkness, and it is surprising how accurate the response is to the light through the proper angle in the total absence of the stimulating agent that caused the response.

AUTOMOBILE WHEELS

Attention has been invited to the fact that the wheels of vehicles intended for driving on roads are not adapted in development with the other parts of carriage mechanism. Experiments with heavy vehicles indicate that wheels should be made both wider and heavier. The reason of this has been recommended that with a maximum axle load of eight tons the wheels of light should be placed in total. Increase of the diameter of the wheel is said to be more effective in preventing damage to roads than width of tire.

More men die of illness than of hard work.

PROVERBS

"Proverbs are like plagues—pretty but poisonous," and an essayist recently wrote, in fact, just the reverse is much nearer the truth. We do not quote proverbs because they are pointed. As Francis Bacon says, "The genius, wit and spirit of a nation are discovered in its proverbs," and Lord John Russell recently described a proverb as "one man's wit and all men's wisdom." Archbishop Trevelyan says proverbs "have been always dear to the true intellectual aristocracy of a nation," giving as evidence that Aristotle took the time and trouble to make a collection of proverbs; that Shakespeare loved them so well that he cites them, makes innumerable covert allusions to them in his plays; and that "Cervantes, a name only inferior to Shakespeare, has not but no doubt in respect of the affection with which he regarded them." Proverbs, like about every other good thing, may be misapplied. Trevelyan has illustrated this in his lecture on the "999" of Proverbs, but which is so evident that it should be clear to all.

THINGS THAT WILL HELP YOU

Getting acquainted with your family, giving time to your children, showing interest in their sport and having fun with them. Be their pal and you will not regret it later. Being kind to others; saving and doing the helpful, considerate things today. Trying to control your unbridled temper or cruel tongue. Giving time and attention to your home life, and contributing toward a beautiful home atmosphere. Rectifying your vow for better things. Being honest and square in your dealings with others. The higher impulses until they cease to plead with you. The beginning of the thing your heart longs for, and that you feel able to accomplish. Making a decision until it is useless or you lose your power to decide. If you have a rat, rat. The present is a good time to make the effort. Turning over a new leaf and rectifying your bad habits. Do it now.—O. S. H.

CURRENT EMPRESS THEATRE ATTRACTIONS

BARRISCALE AIDED BY UNUSUAL CAST
All-Star Character in Support Roles
"Life's Twist" a Photo Play
Supreme

A cast of unusual excellence supports Bariscale in "Life's Twist," the Robertson-Cole Special which will be seen next Monday and Tuesday at the Empress theatre. The picture is reported to show Miss Bariscale at the very pinnacle of her art as a dramatic actress.

Formost among her supporting cast is Walter McGrath, the handsome and sympathetic young leading man, who scored as heavily in "Blind Youth" and other well known pictures. His success is the fruit of many years of solid and substantial work on the screen. McGrath, as the well-bred husband of a pampered society girl, played by Miss Bariscale, gives a finished and highly polished portrayal of a young man who marries for money and then falls in love with his own wife.

King Bariscale, that redoubtable character delineator of the screen, as the disappointed ruler, plays a role which is the nearest approach to those lovable villains who excite the sympathy and good wishes of the audience. Bariscale, the first actor to appear on the screen as "Mr. Jocky" and Mr. Hyde, has starred in a number of well known stories as well as in the war serial, "The Eagle's Eye".

Others in the cast whose established reputations won for them important roles, in "Life's Twist" include Marcia Mason, who whose exotic personality made her one of the outstanding characters in Mary Pickford's "Stella Maris"; Truly Shattuck, musical comedy star and character

Assisting a crook to pick up the family heirlooms isn't the average crook, but in this picture, however, it proved highly entertaining to Travers. Gladwin, that is, proved entertaining and the police followed along and mistook Travers for an impostor, thereby materializing the progress of the crook. If Travers had, instead of wearing Piccini's uniform and swearing his valet to silence his scheme to trip the crook would have matured happily. But as it turned out he came within an ace of losing a fortune in paintings and being arrested for impersonating an officer. He won the heart of Helen Burton, however, left lying around house in the excitement. See dubbing Tom Moore in "Officer 666," at the Empress theatre Friday and Saturday.

BARRISCALE'S BEST

"Life's Twist," the Robertson-Cole Special which will open at the Empress theatre Monday for a run of two days, is said to show Bariscale, the popular star, at his best. The picture, adapted to the screen from a story by Thomas Edgewood, is reported to carry a vital and dramatic theme, showing Miss Bariscale in two widely-opposing roles.

HEL-UP—OFFICER 666

A sport of grapefruit juice in the hands of Helen Burton, the future wife. On such trifles destiny hinges. They met again in his own apartment, where Helen had been invited by Al, Wilson, a crook, impersonating Gladwin. The third time they met it was in the midst of a series of hilarious episodes featuring Officer 666, a policeman, servants and crooks. A fair comedy of speed, thrills and suspense is "Officer 666," featuring Tom Moore at the Empress Theatre Friday and Saturday.

HERE'S SUE FLIGHT FOR YOUTHFUL BRIDE

What Would You Do if You Found Your Husband of a Day Married to Your Young Niece?

What would you do if on your wedding night you suddenly discovered that the man you loved did not marry you because he loved you, but merely for your fortune?

This is the situation Beulah Bariscale herself is in at the Empress, in a beautiful young society girl, the latest production, a Robertson-Cole Special, which will be the principal attraction at the Empress theatre at 7 o'clock Monday, for a run of two days.

Believing that Stephen, her husband, loves her, and not knowing that it was her mother who was anxious to get into society, engineered the marriage, Beulah overcomes her husband's father, her sister that he married because of her family consideration.

Indignant and humiliated, Beulah sends a course of cold indifference towards her husband. In the month that follows Stephen slowly comes to realize the fine character of the woman he has married and falls in love with her, but a wall of misunderstanding has grown up between them, and Beulah will not listen to his declarations of love. Then, in a frenzy of repentance and anger, Stephen confesses a plan, involving a little innocent girl who resembles his wife, that brings her to a startling and novel conclusion.

"Life's Twist," adapted to the screen by Harvey Gates from the magazine story by Thomas Edgewood, is one of the most compelling dramas Bariscale has ever played in. She plays the dual role of Beulah Koven and Tina Pierce, a little girl of the same name.

FINAL SESSION OF TRANS-PACIFIC CONGRESS

Barcelona Conference Achieved Much Despite Handicaps Such as France's Disposition to Belittle Its Powers

BARCELONA, Spain.—The international conference on transit and communications, held under the auspices of the League of Nations, with the object of devising systems for facilitating better communication of all kinds between the nations and for the assistance of trade and commerce, personal convenience and international unity, has at last come to an end. It has lasted longer than expected; the work it had to do was more difficult than it had at first been imagined it would be.

The conference has met with many disappointments. It had them at the beginning, when it saw that its ideals were impossible of achievement with out considerable modification in the way of making allowances for human weaknesses and cupidities, for international rivalries and jealousies and for the great war contingency which cannot be discounted from the calculations of idealists; and it had them again near the end, when France was disposed to make little of the resolutions that were reached.

The last business was to elect the committee and technical commission which will carry on the work of the conference so far as is practicable and necessary; to sign the convention, and fold the closing session. The voting for the election of national delegates to the consultative and technical commission was carried out by the delegates of Poland, Spain, Brazil, Uruguay, Belgium, Holland, China, Switzerland, and Cuba were elected.

NINETEEN NATIONS SIGN PACT

The transit convention was signed by Austria, Belgium, Bolivia, Bulgaria, Denmark, Germany, India, Spain, Greece, Guatemala, Italy, Lithuania, Panama, Persia, Poland, Portugal, Croatia, Czechoslovakia and Uruguay. The convention on the navigable water system was signed by Italy, Panama, Poland and Uruguay.

The facilitation protocol relative to the extension of that relative to all the navigable ways was signed only by Denmark. The draft of the rightmost flag and of intermediate states was signed by Uruguay, Poland, Bulgaria, Austria, Belgium, Spain, Persia, Denmark, Serbia, Croatia and Slovenia with the exception of other nations received the right to sign these conventions and declarations.

Mr. Hanotaux subsequently sent a telegram to King Alfonso in which he said that at the time of the termination of the business of the conference in Barcelona, he interpreted as his president to make to His Majesty an expression of his profound gratitude for the manner in which it had been the object of their stay in Spain. Under the aegis of the League of Nations an important work had been accomplished, and thanks in the name of the League of Nations to the delegation and to the benevolence of the King. Once more Spain had been an impelling force against the world. These were useful to civilization and humanity.

Although all accommodation that was needed by the conference was provided free by the Ayuntamiento and the Municipality, the expenses of the assembly amount to nothing less than $400,000, based on gold. Mr. Hanotaux has presented to the municipal archives a copy of his book, "Joan of Arc." The delegates among themselves submitted the proposals which they handed over to the alcalde for the benefit of the poor. A special train was needed to take away from Barcelona the very large army of secretaries, writers and typists who were employed at the conference. This left Barcelona in the direction of France at 7 o'clock in the evening of the day following the termination of the conference.

NATIONAL VIEWPOINT TO COMBAT

At the end of all Mr. Hanotaux has made a statement on the work of the conference, which he thinks is more valuable than any people more or less prejudiced against it may suppose. It was logical, he said, that in the debates concerning the different conventions each delegate should, up to the last possible moment, support strongly his own point of view. Particularly the convention on navigable ways, of the utmost international interest and importance, had necessitated a long discussion before an agreement could be arrived at. The Latin states of America ought to feel fully satisfied, because this convention respected the rights of the river states, which the Spanish American delegates, particularly Mr. Monterrey, the Brazilian representative, and Mr. Alvarez, the Chilean delegate, had supported with great tenacity and competence. Up to almost the last moment of the conference there were some reasons, perhaps, for doubting its success, since the representatives of each nation were in many cases contradictory, but for himself he never lost his optimism, founded as it was in the good faith of the delegates and in the justice and fraternity which the League of Nations was establishing. The Barcelona conference would signify an important date in the history of the world, now that there had been established for the first time the international transit pact law, according to which it was in the good faith of the delegates and in the justice and fraternity which the League of Nations was establishing.

Across the bordered majesty Of the great hills the passing day Diffs like a wind-swept cloud away Far off beyond the western sky; And while a purple glory spreads, With strains of gold and brilliant reds, An azure veil, translucent, strange, Disembles stains over each dim range.

—William Sharp.

SUNSET

Across the bordered majesty Of the great hills the passing day Diffs like a wind-swept cloud away Far off beyond the western sky; And while a purple glory spreads, With strains of gold and brilliant reds, An azure veil, translucent, strange, Disembles stains over each dim range.

—William Sharp.
